

Third China Matters Young Professionals Debate
 'Are Australian Universities ready for the rise of China?'
 Wednesday 22 November 2017

Debaters

Winnie Eley

Winnie takes on strategic leadership of the University of Newcastle's global engagement and representation; institutional partnerships and reputation; alumni relations and philanthropy; sponsorship and student mobility. She is an appointed auditor for the Quality Assurance Committee of University Grants Committee in Hong Kong. Winnie has over 15 years of senior management experience with appointed positions including founding director of international affairs and acting inaugural director of advanced executive education institute at The Hong Kong Polytechnic University, and director of education services for the British Council in Hong Kong.

Hans Hendrischke

Hans is professor of Chinese business and management at the University of Sydney Business School and chairs the Business and Economics Cluster of the University of Sydney China Studies Centre. Educated at universities in Germany, Taiwan, Japan and the Contemporary China Institute at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, he lived in China from 1979 working for the diplomatic service and in the finance industry. His research is on Chinese entrepreneurship and outbound investment. He has been teaching Chinese economics and business at Macquarie University, UNSW and the University of Sydney to local and international students.

Jessica Wirawan

Jessica is a Manager in PwC Australia's national Diversity & Inclusion team, responsible for developing and driving the firm's strategy with a specific focus on cultural diversity and inclusion. With over 6 years' experience at PwC, she began her career as a graduate in Risk Assurance and previously worked in the national Assurance Strategy & Markets team prior to joining the D&I team. Jessica is a participant in Asia Society's 2017 GEN A Young Leaders program, a Chartered Accountant and holds a Bachelor of Commerce and Arts from the University of Sydney.

Rebecca Yang

Rebecca has been working in the City of Sydney since 2012 and now works as a Counselor of International Relations. She is an alumni of University of Sydney and University of Western Sydney. Before she came to Australia in 2009, she worked in Chinese Harper's Bazaar as a fashion editor and in China Central Television as a journalist.

Moderator

Primrose Riordan

Primrose is a political reporter at The Australian.

Australian Government

China Matters is grateful to our sponsors for their financial support